- 00:28:40 - Kerri Hill: - I was just at 11th/M last night
- 00:29:18 - Richard Dorsett: - There is a tent on sidewalk along south Tacoma way. Not safe at all.
- 00:29:24 - Andrea Haug: - Here in the South End, people are being pushed into wetlands.
- 00:30:00 - Kenneth King: - Clearly, Shelter beds are not adequate as the only option. We see evidence.
- 00:30:47 - Richard Dorsett: - People seem to be trying to hide their camps more effectively; lots of tensions.
- 00:30:49 - Kenneth King: - That's how "seeping" works... if there is not plan. The city sees our folks as refuge. If you sweep refuge back and forth, back and forth, all you do is make a bigger pile
- 00:31:08 - Kenneth King: - *sweeping
- 00:32:12 - Richard Dorsett: - Word from encampment along railroad track is they were told to stay 150 from rails and they would not be bothered.
- 00:32:21 - Oneida Arnold: - Fewer complaints from residents with single tent camps.
- 00:32:58 - Kenneth King: - Plus, if you have spent days or weeks, not being able to rest, and you see a space being used, even if temporarily, you join for a few nights until you regain the strength to go looking for something more permanent
- 00:35:49 - Tod Gunther: - Mariesa, have you considered hosting a "Human Library"? Public comes in and can meet members of different stigmas or topics (like a homeless/former person), etc. You can find more online.

- 00:37:01 - Richard Dorsett: - If everyone on our call or coalition who is in a book group were to get these books read, we could have huge impact on how people talk about home and housing instability.

Body cams on HEAL Team and/or observers - footage can be made into art

Farmtool based art

clear paint that can be seen in rain (leaves dry cement color under the clear paint)

Banksy-like stencil

Farmers market booth - reusable bags with art by Lived Experience (or the stencil)

weather proofed Lived Experience art in public space

01:43:33 - Theresa Power-Drutis: - add on to Room 1 just occurred to me: we could go to policy meetings with emergency blankets wrapped around our shoulders. Can fold and reuse and/or distribute so the blankets don't go to waste.

01:44:13 - Courtney Love: - Group 1, more - flood inboxes weekly of the Mayor and Council - recruit others (organize)

01:44:16 - Dana Peregrine: - Input from our breakout includes: -humanize the issues with videos and interviews with those being moved and swept. Humanize by hearing how sweeps are impacting the unhoused and their ability to secure services

-paying for a billboard that says something like, "Where should they go?" Or use sheets as a billboard -buttons to wear. Also thinking that children like buttons and children influence parents actions.

-social media to push out info., to inspire a movement. YouTube channel called Invisible People. They interview people experiencing homelessness and share their stories.

-call 211 with messages to stop sweeps. the harm of sweeps. All of us call sweeps. Counter all the calls that come into 211 that request removal

-organize group to respond to negative comments made in TNT articles about those living homeless, articles Matt Driscoll writes, for example.

Come witness the sweep

Write what you see and post or publish

Invite your Councilmember and Mayor to the sweep

Most people don't see a sweep; video would be useful. Suggestion that Invisible People be invited. Richard will reach out.

Need something written why sweeps not a good idea. And what it means when all your possessions are taken. Richard will coordinate with Rian.

If you come to sweep, bring supplies: blankets, tents, sleeping bags, contractor bags, small wagons or roll aboard suitcases, coffee, donuts, kindness.

Show up, please. At Union Loop we will arrive about 9:30. Take video and photos. It is likely parking will be available in the encampment, but because of sweep activity, may be limited. There is a shoulder on the road with parking and also across the street.

01:48:02 - Kerri Hill: - Daffodil grand floral parades are tomorrow - will be many people there too

01:48:16 - Theresa Power-Drutis: - More from room 1 Large message that can be seen from street (repurposed sheet strung between trees/poles) with message e.g., "where would you have us go" installed at Union Loop. Request art and/or messages from unsheltered neighbors that we can print multiple copies of. These can be put in sheet protectors and posted whenever a sweep notice is posted. Some kind of art/message that is large enough for people to see while driving by that can be moved to locations where sweeps are posted.
